(Continued.) "Pray avail yourself of it," returned Alice. "Don't let me be any obstacle-carry off the Countess, and I will remain behind with that noble creature, whom you style Don Wirekerandos. I prefer him infin tely to you, he is so like a very well-trained

Harry's conjecture that the mysterious Countess meant to cross in the same vessel with biaself and his wife proved correct; for scarcely had he seen Alice comfortably established on a snug bench, where, if the sea-fiend should be so uncourteous as to ama k her, she could on an emercency lie down; when daintily tripped along the human chicken-ladder which connected the vessel with the shore the graceful, bien chausse, little feet of the Counters! Then ensued a grand seene. Whiskerandes either did not comprehend, or refused to comply with some demand of the hotel commissionaire, who had taken upon himself the charge of the baggage, and who accordingly resisted his convey-ing his mistress's loggage on board.— Whiskerannos grimaced and chattered in a polyglot jargon, apparently compounded of every language under heaven, and utterly incomprehensible to the deepest philologist extant ;the commissionaire was immoveable. Whiskerandos implored,-the commistor aire was deal to his entreaties. Whiskerandos stormed,—the commissionaire was inexorable. Whisk randos, unable to hear his fate wit colmnors, went raving mad-he swore his calling, and the children in their educ oarhs so replete with improbable contion feel the consequence of the change. sounds that it is only a wonder they did not smash every tooth in his head; he stamped, shricked, clenched his fists and shook them in the face of his adversary-in vain; the commissionaire remained adament, and prepared actually to earry off the offending luggage. "Look at that ape," observed Harry to his wife, who was watching the scene, half in amusement, half in terrer-"he's going into sky-bine fits ap-perently-of all absurd sights an angry foreigner is the most ridiculous.— Do you see his mustaches?—they actually stand on end with fury like the hairs on the tail of an excited oat; but see, the Don appeals to his mistress, the Countess will have to settle the affar in propria persona." The affair, however, was not to be settled so easily; for the inflexible commissionairs proved as deaf to the entreaties of the mistress as he had shown himself to the thre tenings of the man; and the Countess, if Countess she was, having remonstrated to no jurpose, in a gent'e timid voice, looked belplessly round, as th ugh she would. appeal to society at large to aid hor in the difficulty.

"Poor thing! those men have fright ned her, sue looks reads to erv. exclaimed Alice. "Harry, dear, do go and see if you cannot assist horyou understand how to manage those people so well; Lesides, they always attend to a gentleman."

Thus urged, Harry crossed the de k, and Alice saw him take off his hat and affdress the interesting fereig er; she bowed her head, and was | evidently making a crateful masser; then Harry turned to the disputance, who both availed him with a voiley of words, up in which, he first rile ced Whiskerandos, then he exchanged a few cabalistic sentences with the commissionaire, and slipped a alisman into his hand, whereupon, with the celer y of some harlequinade trick, he changed into an amiable obliging creature, only too anxious to please everybody, and went off patting Whist crandos on the back, and caliing him a brave garcon, to assist with his own silver-absorbing fingers in conveying the Countess' luggage on board. Then the Countess overwhelm d Harry with thanks, and Harry smiled benignantly upon the Countess, and they "talked conversation" after which they both looked at Alice, and Harry with his best company manner on, (which was merely his own natural manner brushed smooth ) crossed over to her.

"She really is a Countess," he began, "and a very charman refined style of young woman too. She wants to be introduced to you, so come along.'

But Harry, dear, I shall break my neck or tumble into the sea, if I attempt to walk ; just see how it's rolling about," remonstrated Alice, whose essentially terrestrial education had given her rather a horror of all nautical matters.

"We will fall in together thea," returned Harry laughing; "at all events don't let us fall out about it. Come along, little wife, and trust yourself to n.e ; I've paced a vessel's deck when the sea's shown rather a different sort of surface to that which it As he spoke, he placed his arm round his wife's slender waist, and half supported, half led ber across the deck in safety.

"What is her name, Harry ?" inquired Alice, as they were effecting the transit,

The Public Schools. The city of Newport probably pays a larger per capita tax for the average attenof those whose children go to the public that amount of work to do, it being neither out of twenty who has paid attention or, where nearly or quite as many vessels enough to the progress of their children in from foreign ports put in for a harbor as at their education while their children were Newport, there is no Inspector at all; and so at home. ## Local Facts and Gossip.

An Evening with the Police. Unlike almost any other city in the Union, the present Mayor of Newport is in fact, as well as name, the head and front of the Police Department. He has made himself thoroughly acquainted with all the discordant elements of society, at ragabondism, wretch-edness and crime, in all the modes and corners of our city, and very little trenspires in crimi-nal matters that escapes his notice. Indexical Silver Soap.

Indexical Silver Soap.

The Silver Soap is prepared especially for cleaning and polishing Silver, Plated, and Brittania Wares, and for cleaning Mirrors, Marble, Tin, &c. This is the most convenient and effective preparation for these purpasses ever offered to the public. It may be used even by inexperienced help with entire safety, as it contains nothing that can possibly injure the finest plate or jewelry. For eleming flue House Paint, Window Glass, and Carriage Mountings, it is invaluable.

Many of our largest imparters and manufacturers of silver and plated ware have used this article, and have given it their unqualified approval.

Shreve, Brown & Co., (late Jones, Ball & Co.,) of Boston, say "we can recommend it as the best article we have ever seen for cleaning plated and silver ware. It must soon be used by every family."

I have just received an invoice of this soap, which I will warrant to be as represented or the money will be cheerfully refunded. Price 12-12 cents per cake.

This DELECTOUS TONIC especially designed for the use of the Medical Profession and the Family, possesses those intrinsic medicinal properties (Tonic and Diurctic) which belong to an Old and PURE GIN. The business of manufacturing spurious gins, and offering them as beverages, under the titles, "Aromatic,"—"Cordial,"—"Medicated," etc., has become so common, that the public are justly suspicious of nearly everything that is offered under similar forms, and the trade has thus been brought into disrepute It has remained for our house (established in 1778) to supply the pressing popular need, and to inaugurate a new era in the history of the Trade. We trust that our established reputation --- founded upon vindicates our claim to public confidence. A comparison of "Bittinger's Old London Dock Gin" with others bearing shallar names, will establish its superiority, and make other Cautron unnecessary.
